CA18129 - Islamic Legacy: Narratives East, West, South, North of the Mediterranean (1350-1750)

Training School: Islamic Heritage in Europe

January 14-16, 2020.

Structure of the Training School:

This activity will be developed in 2 different spaces: Classroom (a) and visits to Islamic sites (b).

a. Classroom Activities

Students will be split into 3 different panels, related to their research topic. These panels will be chaired by a Senior Scholar who will choose 2-3 published papers related to the methodology of the selected subject, to be read in advance and discussed by the students in relation to their own research. During the sessions, each student should present very briefly (5 minutes) his/her own research, focusing, specially, in the aspects related to the topic of the panel. The chair will connect these presentations to his/her own research and will present some questions to be discussed, some of them based on some previous papers recommended by him/her, and will guide a final debate of 50 minutes.

b. Visit to Islamic sites

These activities will be supervised by the invited scholars. The coordinators of the Training School will select several Islamic monuments in Granada and Córdoba to be presented by the students. Each student will explain one of these selected monuments (5-10 minutes), trying to find connections with the methodological problems of his/her own research.
